

Getting There: CT's Transportation Crisis – Trains, Taxes and Tolls

Wednesday, May 22 @ 7pm

How did our state go from “first to worst” in transportation?
And what does our future hold?

Long-time commuter advocate and newspaper commentator Jim Cameron offers a lively presentation and Q&A on Connecticut's transportation crisis:

- Our crowded highways falling into a state of disrepair
- Hundreds of bridges considered “deficient”
- Metro-North trains running slower while fares increase

Cameron, who has been called “the transportation guru,” is a former NBC News anchor and a recipient of the George Foster Peabody Award. He served on the Metro-North Commuter Council and authors a weekly newspaper column, “Getting There,” which runs in the six Hearst daily papers, as well as a blog , “GettingThereCT.”
